

Our Vision

Western Connecticut State University will be widely recognized as a premier public university with outstanding teachers and scholars who prepare students to contribute to the world in a meaningful way.

2020 Provost's Award for Teaching

Congratulations to Stephanie Kuhn, Assistant Professor, Education and Educational Psychology.

Stephanie received her BS in psychology from Virginia Tech and her MA and PhD in School Psychology from Louisiana State University. She is a licensed psychologist, a board certified behavior analyst, and a licensed behavior analyst. She spent her early career in clinical practice as a psychologist, behavior analyst, and clinical researcher working with individuals with developmental disabilities and severe behavior disorders. Her clinical and research experience is extensive. After completing her pre-doctoral training, Stephanie was on faculty at the Kennedy Krieger Institute and Johns Hopkins University School of Medicine. She then expanded her clinical work directing an outpatient treatment program at Westchester Institute for Human Development while on faculty at the NY Medical College. Throughout her years at Johns Hopkins and NY Medical College Dr. Kuhn also served as an adjunct professor at the University of Massachusetts, Lowell in the Behavioral Interventions in Autism program. The field of behavior analysis experienced a huge increase in interest following the establishment of the Behavior Analysis Certification Board and the establishment of state licensing laws for behavior analysts. These factors led to a large increase in the number of training programs across the country and an influx of new clinicians. As this shift in the field took place, she became more and more interested in the training experiences for students. As a result, she decided to make the shift to teaching at the university level as her primary focus to contribute to the development of a high-quality training program. She joined the WCSU Education and Educational Psychology Department faculty in 2016 in the Applied Behavior Analysis Program. She is the program coordinator and teaches in the MS in Applied Behavior Analysis program. Her scholarly work has primarily focused on the assessment and treatment of severe behavior and has recently involved addressing enhancements of online teaching and socialization/communication deficits among adolescents and young adults diagnosed with an Autism Spectrum Disorder.

Dear Colleagues,

In developing the 2020 issue of Creative Activity, I chose to re-organized by simply grouping all work produced by each member of your community, without differentiating between publications, presentations, workshops and so on. This decision, I believe, better represents the values of WCSU. We encourage everyone to contribute to their communities and professional organizations, produce scholarship and creative works in their disciplines, and experiment with new pedagogies. It is an impressive array and I am proud to present it here.

As always, the approach to style is as eclectic as the many disciplines represented here. It conforms to no single manual because it is impossible to achieve such uniformity. What is consistent is that wherever faculty have collaborated with their students a * is next to the student's name. COVID-19 meant that many conferences were cancelled or postponed. I did not want to neglect the effort the accepted paper, panel or presentation represented, so I have simply added a  to indicate COVID-19's impact.

Well done, everyone.
